We are currently hiring for the company below:

"We are a French startup currently based in London, UK, developing a platform that connects groups of people and bars in the best cities in Europe. Through our platform, our users can book bars for group parties for free and receive special offers and discounts in exchange. For bars, we are a great way to attract and retain new customers. We charge bars a small commission based on the number of people that attend.

We were founded in France in 2013, where we count with over 800 bars in 10 different cities. We are a team of eleven in Paris and two in London, where we are looking to stablish a new commercial office and attract 300 new bars within the next four months.

We are currently looking for an outgoing and hungry intern to help us attract every single bar in London to our online platform.
